The song continued the transformation of the Beatles from a mainly rock and roll - and pop -oriented act to a more experimental, studio-based band. With a double string quartet arrangement by George Martin and lyrics providing a narrative on loneliness, "Eleanor Rigby" broke sharply with popular music conventions, both musically and lyrically.

After all, it was Martin who provided the string quartet arrangement for "Yesterday," the orchestral crescendo of "A Day In The Life," and the woodwind, brass, and string arrangements throughout Abbey Road. Yet, there is at least one Beatles song that was based on a classical sonata – and it was written by John Lennon.
