TEXT 13continues to bring an international perspective on textual theory and practice to this scholarly journal. The contributions of Dutch scholars Annemarie Kets-Vree and H. T. M. van Vliet join Klaus Hurlebusch's essay in encouraging a more global approach to scholarly editing. Other highlights of this volume include: "Evidence for an Authorial Sequence in Donne's Elegies" by Gary A. Stringer, "Reading FinnegansWake Genetically" by Sam Slote, and "No Marriage in Heaven: Editorial Resurrection in Djuna Barnes's Nightwood" by Catherine Hollis. Review essays and book reviews in this volume examine James Grier's The Critical Editing of Music: History, Method, and Practice and recent textual scholarship on the work of William Wordsworth, Jonathan Swift, Mark Twain, and Mary Shelley, among others.

"A well written and stimulating excursion into postmodern education. Parker's challenge to critical educational theory can, in the long run, only help the left rethink and deepen its political project." - Peter McLaren, University of California, Los Angeles. This is a book about two stories of education. In one story there is a vocabulary of means, efficiency, bureaucracy, inspection and science; in the other, one of autonomy, democracy, emancipation and action research. One is the story of positivist managerialist approaches to education, the other is the story of reflective teaching. This book displaces both of these stories. By applying the techniques of deconstruction, Stuart Parker overturns the assumptions common to both of these positions and, in doing so, jettisons some widely cherished beliefs about education, autonomy and rationality. Moving beyond current debates, this book articulates a new manifesto for education in postmodernity and highlights the implications for educational practices and institutions.

Dramatic as the corporate takeovers of recent years have been, it is far from clear what underlying forces are at work, and what their long-term consequences will be. This book represents one of the first sustained efforts to examine the complex issues surrounding the corporate takeover. Based on papers presented at a symposium sponsored by Columbia Law School's Center for Law and Economic Studies, it airs new theories and offers vital insights into events that have become central to American corporate culture.
