Frank and Daisy Best decide to retire early from a successful B&B and farm business. They move into what they think is the perfect, if derelict, cottage in an idyllic Cotswolds village. At first they are inundated with social invitations by the neighbours but as the neglected property is refurbished and the Bests begins to turn it into a dream home, the same group of neighbours turn against the couple resorting to every low trick in order to prevent the improvements and force them out of the village. The story touches on what goes on behind the picket fences and stone walls that surround the pretty English gardens of a quintessential Cotswold village, the sort of place that statistically, so many people dream of retiring to. Mr. and Mrs. Best discover that as the newest inhabitants in Whisperswood, they find that they have to earn their place, starting at the bottom, in the hierarchy. The story follows them from the euphoria of finding a rare cottage in the sort-after village, to a dark battle against organised bullies, for their right to live a peaceful life. This is a story of life's ups and downs, told with passion and pain but also with humour.
