History of Europe - History of Europe - The emergence of modern Europe, 1500–1648: The 16th century was a period of vigorous economic expansion. This expansion in turn played a major role in the many other transformations—social, political, and cultural—of the early modern age. By 1500 the population in most areas of Europe was increasing after two centuries of decline or stagnation.

European Urbanization, 1500-1800 by Jan de Vries

This article discusses the volatile changes in Europe, as the urban revival of the sixteenth and early seventeenth centuries, signalled by the rise of capital cities in all regions and the foundation of hundreds of new market towns, gave way to urban stagnation or decline. Deceleration was caused by economic and political instability, extensive warfare, and high levels of epidemic disease.
