The easiest way to understand a contract is as a legal agreement between two parties. Several elements go into the formation of contract, but the initial step is one party making an offer and the other party accepting. At least two parties are required for a contract to be formed, as there must be both an offeror and an offeree.

First principles of contract formation. In business, there is great emphasis on building a network of contacts and developing those relationships. This often leads parties to discuss and negotiate potential deals and ventures in settings other than the boardroom. This article examines three cases that were heard in the course of 2017 that considered the basic principles of contract formation (and in particular the intention to create legal relations) in the context of informal discussions ...
